

WCC FUNDRAISING AMBASSADOR IN THE NEWS, 19 MAR 2012

DATIN ANNIE CHIN

Women's Rights Philanthropist

This very lovely lady epitomizes the ideal humanitarian, using her position in high society to champion women's rights. She does not just talk about it, she is hands-on and directly involved, actively fundraising for the Women's Center for Change in Penang, which helps women and children facing crisis irrespective of race, religion or social background. "You might not be able to help everyone," says Datin Annie, "but even if you can help just one person, it is worth it." She helps not just one, but many, and her work serves as an incredible inspiration to others, and sends a much greater and far-reaching message than even she herself realizes. She believes that women should learn to love themselves for who they are, not just as supporting roles in society. "Gender equality is important. And I am helping these women gain this self respect that everyone deserves."

Lillian is a great admirer and supporter of Datin Annie's causes, so it is not surprising that the lady is also a fan of Lillian's pieces.
